Ac- much aggravated by this subject. The cording to the newspaper reports, the only argument that was offered against the modiion of the contracts was against any right to use the streets at all for railroads, and the contracts seem to have been insisted upon as a means of crushing them out. This feeling and the mob spirit which was tions are not known to be sound. No one

The clear exhibition of the nature of the opposition to the modification of the contracts, which was made by the meeting on Thursday night, was necessary to make it consistent with the common sense of those engaged in it; for, that any number of citizens, however small, should agitate themselves and assemble together to insist that the right to pay one cent to the city for the privilege of using the street cars on their own highways, should be preserved sacred to them, and handed down to posterity unimpaired—as we say on the Fourth of July—quite surpassed the bounds of reason. It is a relief to find that no one has been stricken with this clap of nonsense, unless it may have been in the Gazette and Times offices, in which cases it is not unaccountable, as elements will follow their baked only on one side.

A series of these anti-railroad meetings Bench gives great tenacity to life; but alarmwill have excellent effect in placing the ing changes have been going on in the merits of the controversy fairly before the Senate. Senators who belong to no and the papers above honorably mentioned, were in error in supposing, or stating-the terms are not always synonymous—that the Railroad Companies instigated any movement to break up the meeting, for it seems to us that no means so effectual as such meetings can be used to aid the Railroad Companies in their purpose.

We fear that human nature would be an incomprehensible element if its representations by some of the Cincinnati papers were accepted as true, and perhaps it will be found that these are representations of their own internal condition rather than of public sentiment; for it is quite improbable that any constituent voted for any Conncilman on the express pledge that his right to pay the city for the privilege of riding in the cars of the railroad companies on the highways should be jealously guarded; or that he would feel himself "sold" if he were permitted to ride thirty times on the cars for a dollar, instead of twenty-five times, as now. The anti-railroad movement, now that it is fairly developed, proposes to abolish street railroads entirely, to prohibit our citizens from using the highways in the means of transit most convenient to them, and to restore omnibuses and centralize the value of real estate and rents, to stop the growth of the city outwardly and concentrate it, to restrict the people in locomotion in order to add to the value of central property, and, in short, to cut off the conve-nience of the many in order to help the speculators and increase the wealth of a few. There is about as much probability that any large number of our people will engage in such a movement, as that they will undertake to abolish steam engines and wheeled vehicles and restore horse-mills and panniers.

Munificence of an Impovertaked Govern-

Congress has passed a bill to increase the pay of officers of the Asmy twenty-five per cent, which will probably become a law, as there are no partisan inducements or support for the President to veto such a bill. This messure, at a time when the Government is commutating debt for its current expens and when the pay of our Army officers is al ready more liberal than that of any other na-tion, and when the Republicans have at least enough members in the House to be a check on Government extravagance, is ominous of the brilliant administration that we may ex-pest under entire Republican ascendency, and of the munificence that contemns the cost so long as it but adds to the protective their just responsibility for this measure which is only another illustration that a popular Government is naturally the most extravagant of any, because in it all the influences and all the popular pressure are in favor of extravagant expenditaces, while there is no element to withstand these.

Mr. Hunter moved to postpone former orders and take up the Postoffice Deficiency Bill. The bill was debated.

The bill was amended by striking out so much as provides for the restoration of discontinued routes, 28 to 24; also by the adoption of the amendment restoring the mail service on the route from Charleston via Key West to Havana, giving it to the lowest bidder. The bill passed.

After Executive Session, adjourned.

HOUSE.—Mr. Reynolds, from the Committee on Judiciary, reported a bill providing that any United States Marshal, Deputy Marshal, or any other ministered officer, who shall permit the escape of criminals in their custody, whether charged with offenses under the laws of the United States or any foreign country with whom we may have treacustody, whether charged with offenses under the laws of the United States or any foreign country with whom we may have treaties of extradition, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined and imprisoned according to the decision of the Court, having respect to the nature of the crime with which the prisoner is charged. Bill passed. Mr. Winslow, rising to a privilege question, called for the reading of extracts from the journal of the Covode Committee, of which he is a member, by which it appears he desired to subpens certain citizens of Luzerne County, Penn.; to this Mr. Covode interposed, that he had in his possession the names of one hundred persons as witnesses, but as in evidence they had no direct connection with the Government, he declined to summon them.

It appears, further, from the record, that Mr. Winslow applied for those witnesses in April, but they had never been summoned; he had been informed on authority, said to be reliable, not by anonymous letters, that large sums of money had been used to secure the election of Mr. Scranton to this House.

Mr. Covode to this replied he would vote

Mr. Winslow's request that this matter be submitted to the House at a subsequent period was also refused. Mr. Winslow wished to subpena Mr. McMillen and several others of Phlladelphia. By them he desired to prove bribery on the part of the officers in the election in that city.

Mr. Winslow's request was denied by a tie vote.

Mr. Winslow then moved to subpens witnesses from Greensboro' and Pittsburg, understanding that they could prove corruption in Westmoreland County, to which Mr. Covode objected, that those gentlemen had no connection with the government. This request was also refused.

The record further states that when Frederick Inge was called to the stand, Mr. Winslow asked whether, at any minute, he had been summoned, and the Clerk of the Committe replied that there was no minute of it. Mr. Winslow then asked that a copy of so much of the journal as related to the summoning of witnesses, be furnished to him, which was agreed to.

Points of order were here raised.

Amid the greatest excitement, the Speaker decided that Mr. Dawes had the floor. Comparative quietness was then restored.

Mr. Dawes proceeded to justify Mr. Train's language. Was it not, he asked, a coat that fitted the gentleman from Alabama? (Mr. Houston.) He wanted to see the record of those who would censure his colleague for saying he would consider himself ungentlemanly if he violated the rules of order.

Points of order were again introduced with a repetition of the previous excitement.

Mr. Hatton moved to table the subject. Disagreed to—70 to 100.

The Indians opened a fire on the troops from behind rocks and busines, doing damage without suffering much in return. This lasted two hours, when the annumition of the Ormsby party gave out and the Indians closed upon them, killing many on the spot, the balance retreated in all directions. The number of slain will probably reach fifty. Major Ornsby was among the slain. Only thirty-eight of the party reached Virginia City alive. HAVING MADE USE OF VARIOUS found them all more of less imperfect in their construction. I, therefore, determined to purchase one of FINKLE & LTON'S make. I have been minst it for a considerable time, and it affords me pleasure to schnowledge that I am highly pleased with it. The following are some of the advantages which this Machine possesses over all others.

1. If operates with perfect case and facility.
2. It causes but little noise.
3. It requires but little noise and facility.
4. As the shuttle rans in a cradie, the Machine in prevented from wearing out, and the thread kept tree from oil and dirt.
I can, therefore, with confidence, recommend to all those who are in want of a Sewing Machine, the FINKLE & LYON MACHINE as the very boot in the market, insegment as its construction is very simile, and its exterior very neat and elegant.
